thing in a confused state. It took a long time to straighten them out, but I know now that there are no more assets than those I have named in the letters of administration.

"Dr. Edson made an enormous income. He worked continuously, but he was as strong as an ox and had the greatest confidence in his own ability to keep grinding away. When he was taken down with pneumonia he said to me that he was afraid for himself, simply because he was such a strong man. The strong, he said, succumb to pneumonia more easily than the weak.

Had No Business Ability.

"A kinder more generous husband never lived, but he was a man without business ability, and the result is that this family is left without any of the large amount of money that he earned in his life time. I repeatedly told he ought to let me take charge of his affairs, but he always insisted that there was plenty of time in which to make money. The charity of the man was another conspicuous part of his character. He wouldn't charge a rich man a fifth part of what other physicians of his rank would, and no one rich or poor, was ever turned away without the advice that they came for it really didn't matter whether people had money or not, he was always ready to give them the benefit of his professional skill.

"Dr. Edson had no idea of the value of money. When the summer came around and he was tired, he would ask me if i wouldn't like to go on a yachting trip. I'd be glad, of course, to take his vacation with him, and then he'd go out and charter a yacht for $5,000 or $10,000, and by the time we got back fied have little or nothing left and would plunge into work to get money for the next great extravagance.

"He made money easily and spent it easily. He always thought there was plenty of time, and that is the reason we find ourselves in this position to-day."

Dr. Edson died two weeks ago of

Dr. Edson died two weeks ago of pneumonia, after a very brief liness. His death was a great surprise to all who knew him, for he was a large, powerful man, the very picture of heaith.

MISER CASE UP AGAIN.

Second Hearing for James Alder Mee, Accused of Uttering Forged Deeds.

The second hearing of James S. Alderdice, accused of uttering forged deeds to property belonging to Mary J. Oliver, the Harlem miser, previous to her death, was begun this afternoon in the Centre Street Court.

Assistant District-Attorney Paul Krotel conducted the examination for the prosecution. Mr. Alderdice was The first witness was Mrs. Emms

The first witness was Mrs. Imma-Jacobson, a granddaughter of Mrs. Oliver. She identified a notebook, or diary, which had been the property of-her grandmother. The book was placed in evidence.

At the first hearing Mrs. Jacobson said that her grandmother had told her that she had been bothered by three-men who had tried to force her to sign away her property.
